CITIZEN GENET, Minister Plenipotentiary of the French republic, to Mr. JEFFERSON, Secretary of State.

I HAVE just received, together with your letter of the 3d inst. the dissolution of citizen Duplaine, vice consul at Boston, and I hasten to declare to you, that I do not acknowledge its validity, because the constitution of the United States has not given the President the right which he now appears desirous to exercise—it has empowered him, as the first minister of the American people, to admit and to receive the ministers of foreign nations, sent to the great American confederation, and their consular agents distributed to the particular states, but in confiding to him this official function, it has not given him the power of discharging them to send them away, or to suspend them when once they have been admitted. Such an authority cannot be exerted, sir, but by the sovereign of the agent, or by the one to which he is sent. On the part of their own sovereign their recall can only be the object of his particular will or a consequence of negotiations begun with him for that object. On the part of the sovereign to whom he is sent, a dissolution can be the result only of an act of regular justice; or of an arbitrary act—If it is a national act of justice, the sovereign should be furnished with every possible light upon so important an object, that he may be enabled to prove to the foreign sovereign, that his minister was unworthy of his confidence, and that the dissolution or suspension was indispensable. If it is an act merely arbitrary, it is among the class of acts of aggression, and becomes a cause of war, and you know, sir, that in this respect, the constitution of the United States has reserved to the representatives of the people, the right of declaring it—I do not recollect what the worm-eaten writings of Grotius, Puffendorf and Vattel say on this subject—I think God I have forgot what those hired jurisprudents have written upon the rights of nations, at a period when they were all enchained.

But the fundamental points of your liberty and our own, are engraved in my memory in characters not to be effaced, and the rights of man are enclosed in my breast with the source of life. I have incessantly before my eyes, your constitution and our own, and it is because I fully feel the just and wise intentions of those who founded them, that I demand of you, sir, to ask the President of the United States, to procure an examination, by the legislature representing the sovereign people of Massachusetts of the conduct of citizen Duplaine, in the same manner as I have demanded an examination of my own in the

In governments like ours, political affairs can only be judged by political bodies, and it the vice consul Duplaine has infringed the particular laws of Massachusetts, or the general laws of the union, which that government is bound to support, to that state the cognizance of a crime against the majesty of the nation belongs, in the first instance, and it is for her officers to announce it to the federal government in order that the foreign agent, found to have violated the laws of the country, may receive punishment from his sovereign, if he merits it. I insist with the more confidence upon this step, sir, as the attorney for the district of Boston, made three efforts to procure a bill to be found at the circuit court against citizen Duplaine, and three times a popular and virtuous jury threw out his complaint, and this vice consul was finally acquitted in the most honorable manner.—How could in fact any room for acquiescence against him be found, since he only acted in conformity to the treaties, to his instructions, to the decisions of the federal government, communicated to all the states, which even trust to the care of the French consuls the prizes supposed to be made with in the jurisdiction of the United States, and as he proved it incontrovertibly, that he never had any intention of resisting, by force, the orders issued to him by judicial authority, altho' they were contrary to the political rights of the French nation.

NATIONAL CONVENTION,

August 22.

A deputation of Americans being admitted to the bar, the orator said, "The Americans, ever faithful to their treaties, have braved all dangers to supply your ports with flour, rice, coffee, and other necessities; your brothers in the French colonies have also been distressed, and we have been eager to go to relieve their wants; we would be glad to continue our efforts, but we are prevented by a decree, which, if it be maintained, violates your principles, and the treaties by which we are mutually connected. You doubtless do not wish to render enemies to each other, two nations formed to love one another? You do not wish to set to Europe the shocking example of violating treaties? We demand that you annul the decree which prohibits the exportation of all kinds of provisions, and hinders us from supplying our colonies."—Petition referred to the committee of commerce and marine, to make a speedy report.

Letters from the army of the Rhine state, that the French have retaken Bielefeld and the heights on the morning of the 18th, that place having been evacuated entirely by the Prussians on the 17th.

DEATH of the ROYALISTS.

The representatives of the people, in a letter from Rochelle, dated Aug. 15, stated the following defeat.

"For several days past the enemy threatened our troops in the plain of Lucon. Yesterday 40,000 both infantry and cavalry, appeared in three columns; they commenced a vigorous attack, which proved however fatal to them, for in less than an hour and a half the ground was covered with dead bodies. We think that the enemy lost 5000 in this first attack; our troops pursued them to the distance of five leagues. We will make the best of our success, and not suffer them to rally; 6000 republicans put 40,000 bandits to the route; and to great was their terror, that they must have fled had they been 100,000. The victory cost them 16 pieces of cannon, and six ammunition waggons."

LONDON, August 28.

The following dispatch was this morning received from col. Sir James Murray, adjutant general to the forces under command of his royal highness the duke of York, at the office of the right honorable Henry Dundas, his majesty's principal secretary of state for the home department.

Lefferick's Rock Aug. 26

SIR,

I have the honour to inform you that his royal highness intended upon the 24th to attack the enemy who are still posted at some distance from Dunkirk, in order to get possession of the ground which it was necessary to occupy previous to the siege.—They hastened the execution of his design by attacking the out Post between the canal of Furnes and the sea; lieutenant gen. Dalton advanced with the reserve, which was encamped upon that side, to their support.—The enemy were repulsed, and driven, with loss into the town. One piece of cannon and a few prisoners were taken. The ardour of the troops carried them further in the pursuit than was intended, so that they came under the cannon of the Place, by which means a considerable loss has been sustained.—This was likelier to happen, and more difficult to be prevented, from the nature of the country, which is covered with trees and enclosures.

Lieut. general Dalton was killed with a cannon shot towards the conclusion of the attack. The loss of this excellent officer must be severely felt. The courage and ability, which he has displayed in the course of many campaigns, raised him to the highest rank of estimation in the army in which he served.

His royal highness has likewise to lament the loss of col. Eld, of the Coldstream regiment, and of other valuable men. The troops behaved with their usual courage.

I have the honour to be, &c.

JA. MURRAY.

NEW-YORK, November 4.
SOCIETY of the Jupiter, commanded by Citizen Bompard.

The brig Robert Steele, which returned yesterday, a prize to the Cerf, a French sloop of war, is said to have brought intelligence, that the French fleet, under the command of admiral Sercey, had abandoned the expedition for which they were destined, and had failed for France.—That this movement was occasioned by citizen Bompard, who having seduced the people of the Jupiter, immediately flew away for France.—That the crew of the l'Eole declared for following the Jupiter, notwithstanding the positive orders and the most animated remonstrances of the admiral; and that on the discovery of this, the remainder of the fleet did not hesitate to follow them.

PHILADELPHIA, November 7.
Captain Weeks, of the ship Henrietta, just arrived in a short passage from O'land, informs, that on the tenth September the army commanded by the Duke of York, was defeated, with immense slaughter, by the French troops at Dunkirk.

It is reported, says a Charleston paper of the 15th ult. that the French National Convention have appointed General Galtud to the chief command of the island of St. Domingo, and recalled Polverel and Santhonax, their commissioners, from that island.

The forces of France were reported in Convention August 28, to be 1,101,922 effective men.

November 15.

A gentleman arrived this morning from Boston, reports, that when he left that town, a vessel arrived from Cadiz, after a short passage, had brought the following intelligence: "The inhabitants of Toulon had refused to participate in the crime of those who had surrendered the town; they had taken possession of the Fort Lamalle, which commanded the road, and it was very probable, the English would not find it so easy to get out as to get in."

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15.

A letter from a gentleman in Wilmington, Delaware, to his friend in this town, says, that a captain of a vessel had arrived there from Offend, who informs that the prince Cobourg's army was completely defeated by the French, and that general, with 15,000 of his men, killed in the action.—The captain says he saw the Prince's funeral, but gives no information where or when the battle was fought.

The Delaware Gazette, of the 9th inst. adds, that in the above engagement the duke of York was taken prisoner, and refused by the bravery of the British guards.

A report is in circulation, and generally believed, in New-York, that the English had taken Port-au-Prince—that previous to its capture, the French commissary, Santhonax, had attempted to burn the prison, in which near 800 persons were confined, but that they were luckily rescued—and that Santhonax was taken, and taken to pieces by the enraged populace.

PITTSBURGH, November 25.

By a gentleman who came passenger in the Eliza, captain Colley, arrived at Norfolk (Virginia) we are sorry to learn, that Mr. Gregorie, sen. (of the house of Gregorie and Barfale, Peterburgh) and Mr. Archibald Hunter, of Rappahannock, were guillotined at Dunkirk, about the last of August for having expressed sentiments inimical to the cause of France.

Intelligence by the last mail from Philadelphia, gives us the pleasing satisfaction of informing our readers that the malignant disorder has entirely ceased, and it has become as healthy as at any former period.

Lexington, December 14.

A report prevails, that England has actually declared war against America; we do not vouch for the authenticity thereof, but will leave our readers to judge for themselves from the following circumstances:

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Madison county, in the State of Virginia, dated November 4, 1793.

"I have nothing new of importance to communicate to you, except the great probability, that America will immediately be drawn into a war with Europe."

Another letter to an inhabitant of this county from the State of Pennsylvania, is said to contain information, that Great Britain has declared war against America—and a prevailing report is, that some gentlemen lately from the lower parts of Virginia, say, that the report that England had declared war against America, was credited there before they left that place.

In consequence of an order of the court of Fayette county, on Wednesday the 11th inst. granting leave to the inhabitants of this county to inoculate for the Small Pox, until the first of May next; a meeting of the inhabitants of the town of Lexington was called to take the sense of the inhabitants, what were the measures necessary to be adopted on the occasion, and on the question, "Whether it was expedient for the inhabitants of the town of Lexington to introduce the Small Pox by inoculation," it was negatived by a large majority.

A report that the Small Pox is in Lexington, is entirely without foundation; the troops Cantonment about six miles from Lexington have it, as also a family near the burnt station on North Elkhorn.

Strayed or Stolen from the subscriber, about three or four weeks past, one dark bay horse, fourteen hands and a half high, his near hoof split, branded B on his near shoulder, GS on his near buttock, six or seven years old: One bay mare and spring colt, the mare about fourteen hands high, short tail, thought she is branded B on the near shoulder, about eight or nine years old: Likewise one bay Filly two years old neither branded or docked. Whoever takes up the horse and two mates and delivers them in Lexington, shall have two dollars a piece.

THE commanding Officer of the Dragoons, takes this early opportunity to caution the good citizens in the neighbourhood of the cantonment, against any dealings with the soldiery of the squadron, without a written permission from a commissioned Officer, which will be always granted in proper cases. He hopes this friendly notice will not give offence, as it is only intended to preserve the public property inviolate, and prevent any misunderstanding between the troops of the United States and the people of Kentucky.

Left any imposition should take place, the Commanding officer has thought proper to add the names of the officers of the corps.

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

LIFE IS SHORT.

MAN'S life, like any weaver's shuttle flies,
Or like a tender flow'et fades and dies,
Or, like a race, it ends without delay,
Or, like a vapour vanishes away,
Or, like a candle, in each moment waxes
Or, like a vessel, under sail it hastes,
Or, like a post, it gallops very fast,
Or, like the shadow of a cloud, 'tis past.
Our castles are but weak, and strong the foe,
Our time's but short, our death is certain too,
But as this coming is a secret still,
Let us be ready, come death when he will.

At a court continued and held for the county of Fayette, on Wednesday the eleventh day of December, 1793.

UPON information given to the Sheriff, that the Small Pox was in this county, he proceeded to notify all the justices thereof, except those absent therefrom, that applications would this day be made for leave to inoculate. Application was accordingly made to the justices present, and they having satisfactory information that the disorder prevails in sundry parts of the county, conceived probable the infection will spread and prevail, do give permission to the citizens of Fayette to inoculate until the first day of May next, and do require the heads of families as well as Physicians, and others who attend those who are infected, to keep up advertisements on the roads and travelling paths leading to the house where the patients may be kept, two hundred yards therefrom, notifying of the infection until there is good reason to believe it is removed, of which a certificate from the Physician, or whoever may have attended to the patient, shall be deemed satisfactory.

And do order that a copy of this permission be inserted in the Kentucky Gazette for three weeks successively.

THE TRANSYLVANIA SEMINARY.

IS now well supplied with teachers of Natural and Moral Philosophy, of the Mathematics, and of the learned languages.

An English teacher is also introduced, into the College who teaches, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, and the English Grammar. In this school great attention is paid to Reading; and that not confined to prose authors only, but to the Poet.—This Seminary is the best seat of education on the Western waters; and it is to be hoped, the time is not far distant when even prejudice itself will not think it necessary to transport our Youths to the Atlantic States, to complete their educations.

Good boarding may be had in Lexington and its vicinity, on every moderate terms.
